Alaska Trade Worth Getting

Alaskans the prize spendthrifts.

Col. W. T. Perkins in a recent speech at an Ad Club luncheon urged Seattle businessmen to support the Alaska bureau of the Chamber of Commerce declaring that one reason why Alaska trade is worth so much to Seattle or any other city which cares to go after the business, was that Alaskans purchase more per capita than any other white men in the world. He said that many Seattle firms which work hard for business in Seattle and Washington spending large sums of money advertising and exploiting their goods, would do better to carry their campaign to Alaska where millions of dollars worth of supplies are sold each year.

The bricks manufactured in the United States during 1911, if laid end to end would reach fifty-one times around the earth.

Quiet Boom For N. J. Svindseth

During the past week the existence of a quiet boom boosting Capt. N. J. Svindseth for a seat in the territorial legislature has been intimated to the Sentinel. The probable reason for the quietness of the movement is the absence of the Captain who went south recently with the Irene Barnes for F. C. Barnes Company and his return will be the signal for opening the boom afresh or silencing it entirely.

Mining Congress Meet in Spokane

The official call for the annual session of the American Mining Congress has been issued for Spokane, Washington in November. The Congress, a deliberative body, has an Alaska Committee and was interested in framing Alaska coal, land and railroad legislation during the session of the 62nd Congress just adjourned.

Moen Selling Wrangell Interest

Will remove family to old home

On account of his wife's failing health, N. L. Moen has decided to sell out all his Wrangell interests and remove his family to Sweden. J. J. McTague and Karl Hedland are negotiating for the Dairy and several parties have submitted propositions relative to the skating rink. In the event of a speedy sale the Moens expect to get away for the long trip east by October first.

Will Spend Winter On the Sound

C. A. Tervo, Canadian Customs officer stationed on the Stikine at the United States-Canadian boundary will spend the winters hereafter on the Sound instead of in Wrangell and will move his family south at the close of navigation on the river this fall. Mr. Tervo has sold his Wrangell property consisting of house and lot to H. D. Campbell.

An Eastern Editorial On Alaska's Election

The election in Alaska was very significant about the state of public opinion in that region. The candidate of the progressive party was overwhelmingly elected; the Republican candidate was correspondingly buried; the Socialist, although he had no money, ran neck and neck with the Republican; and the Democrat was a very bad fourth. The reports about Alaska public opinion which are sent about the United States by those interested in exploiting Alaska are scarcely borne out by this election.

Bread.

An English writer on institutional housekeeping advises that, where economy is studied, bread should not be eaten before it is thirty-six hours old. After three days it becomes stale and unpalatable.

Mounted Officers For the Territory

The problem of giving Alaska a military police system may be solved in the near future, not by the stationing of a regiment or more of soldiers there, scattering the troops through the territory by companies, but by establishing a constabulary system modeled along the lines of the Northwest mounted police which has accomplished wonderful results in Canada.

Major George H. McManus, of the Inspector-General's department who has just returned from an inspection tour of Alaska army posts acknowledged that such a constabulary is being contemplated. "Personally" said he "I believe that a system of this kind would work out well. Certainly if a corps as efficient as the Northwest mounted police could be developed it would do much to preserve law and order in Alaska, possibly far more than a large number of soldiers." — Oregonian.

Santa Ana Foreman Dies of Appendicitis

Joseph Fribrook, foreman in the Northwestern Fisheries Company's cannery at Santa Ana, died of appendicitis at the hospital early Monday morning. About two weeks ago he was brought in from Santa Ana suffering from an attack of the disease and after a few days treatment was much improved but another attack followed which in his weak condition he was unable to withstand.

Mr. Fribrook was a member of Odin Lodge No. 393 Odd Fellows, at San Francisco, California. His only relative in America, a brother has a foreman's position at Kenai Peninsula with the Northwestern Fisheries Company and is on his way to Seattle having finished for the season.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, Rev. J. S. Clark officiating and interment was made in the Red Men's Cemetery.

The steed of a Southeastern Alaska Mounted Policeman must necessarily take the form of a gasboat.

The newspapers of Alaska need to form some kind of an association that will protect themselves, as well as the public, from being swindled by the cheap traveling shows and individual entertainers that make this country each year.

Just about 90 per cent, of the musicians and mind readers and elocutionists and would-be actors that come this way, are absolutely cultus and should be given the rush-o'-boots instead of civil treatment. They get off the boat at some part of entry to the south and there commence to work the newspapers for boosts. The newspaper man knows nothing about them but he takes the chance that they are about half as good as they claim to be and announces that they are not to be approached by anything outside of London or Paris. That article is clipped and brought along to fool the rest of us with and the result is we do not know it is a fraud until the deed has been done and the public stung again.—Ex.

We agree with the above sentiments but can't help guessing as to the cause of this article.

Sun and Fire Symbols

There are to be found occasionally upon the walls of old brick houses, at about the line of division between the first and second stories, flat pieces of iron five or six inches in length and shaped somewhat like the letter "S." The use of these articles was clearly brought from England, where it is still continued, and there are a curious origin and meaning attached to them. The figure in question is an early symbol of the sun. It is still used in Herefordshire and other parts of England. There one is informed that the reason for the particular form of these irons is that they were made thus in order to protect the house from fire as well as from collapse.—Harper's.

Budding Genius.

A newspaper recently offered a prize for the best story to be written by a pupil of the public school. Here are a few passages from the contributions: "Cora Brown was fortunately the possessor of a birthday, for she was the daughter of rich friends." "But all this time a cloud was gathering over Mrs. Delaney, which grew large as years went by, and that cloud was full of grasshoppers." "My father desired me to marry a bank president, a handsome, reckless man, fond of naught save the gaming table." "Wat dell you, wat I dell you," shouted the Irishman." "As she entered the room a cold, damp smell met her sight."

Why They Stopped.

A Harlem woman returned from a three months' stay in Europe recently. The day after she reached home her old negro washerwoman came to the house, ready to return to work. During the conversation that followed the white woman asked:

"Louise, do you and your husband quarrel like you used to?"

"No, ma'am," replied the washerwoman.

"Well, that's nice. I'll bet you're glad of it, aren't you?"

"Ah sholly is."

"What caused you to stop quarreling?"

"He died," said the negress.—New York Telegraph.

An Anthem to Order.

Lord Kitchener on one occasion invented a national anthem. It was upon the occasion of a visit to India of the ameer of Afghanistan, and the order went around that all military bands were to greet him with the national anthem of Afghanistan. But no one knew what it was, and Lord Kitchener was appealed to.

"What does it matter two straws?" he said. "Play a bar or two of something slow and pompous and let it go at that."

So the first band that greeted the ameer played a march from one of the German operas very slowly and solemnly, and this was generally taken up by the whole of the bands in India.

Galilei and the Swinging Lamp.

The boy Galilei, sitting with hundreds of others in the Cathedral of Pisa on a Sunday morning, saw an attendant draw aside the heavy hanging lamp to light it and then let it swing. Many other eyes saw the same thing, but there was only that pair in Galilei's head which really observed what happened, and only his brain began to reason upon it. He alone noticed that as the swings of the huge lamp became smaller and smaller they always took the same time. He proved it by counting them with his pulse. He had made a great discovery, out of which grew the pendulum clock and the accurate measurement of time.—New York Journal.

Canvey Island.

Canvey Island is one of the most un-English spots in the kingdom. The island was almost submerged until 1622, when the owner, Sir Henry Appleton, agreed to give one-third of it to Joas Croppenburg, a Dutchman skilled in the making of dikes, on condition that he "inned" it. This the Dutchman did by the erection of a sea wall twenty miles in length. Many of the workmen whom Croppenburg brought over settled on the reclaimed land. Some of the old Dutch houses still remain, and the whole aspect of the flat, almost treeless island is suggestive of the banks of the Zuyder Zee.—London Spectator.

QUARRELS.

"If there happens a misunderstanding, a quarrel (and these things do come to every human being), I shall face the facts and be just. I shall not childishly slam a door on an explanation. That happens in books sometimes in order to help along the plot a hundred pages or so. In life every moment of happiness counts. Our time here is so very, very short."

School Notes

By James W. Dalgity

The Wrangell Schools opened Monday, September 2nd with an enrollment of 80 pupils. Five have since entered. As Monday was Labor Day, after enrollment and assignment to grades, the pupils were dismissed for the day.

The room built during the summer is occupied by the 1st and 2nd grades under Miss Pritchett.

The 3d, 4th and 6th grades are under the supervision of Miss Haley.

Mrs. Burke has charge of the 7th and 8th grades and first year work.

Drawing books and drawing materials have been ordered, and under the supervision of Miss Pritchett, work in drawing will be given in each grade.

If any doubts were entertained as to the necessity of another room and instructor, such have been dispelled. We have a full house. Come and see us.

As it didn't happen, no one knows whether we just missed it or it just missed us but here it is:

Bright Ripples.
These are some of the pupils' answers to examination problems:
The countries benefited by the overflow of the Nile are Europe, Asia, Australia and America, because they are not there to be drowned.

The source of the Nile river is its main strength.

Example—A boy paid $8.25 for a wagon and sold it for $7.75. Did he gain or lose, and how much?

Answer—He gained on the cents and lost on the dollars.—Kansas City Star.

Tongs.

Tongs were said to have been invented in China B. C. 1122, but representations of them have been found on the Egyptian monuments B. C. 2200. In India they are claimed as in use since B. C. 900, and their principal employment in that country, where fires during the most of the year are superfluous, was to facilitate the handling of dead bodies in the funeral pyres. Seventy pairs of tongs, some bronze, some iron, have been taken from the ruins of Pompeii.

Taxless Town.

There is a community in France where not only are there no taxes, but the timbers on the communal lands are sufficient to grant each person a small annuity. This happy land is Montmarion, in the Midi. There are seven electors in the hamlet, so to avoid anything like rivalry the seven return themselves to the local council. Cutting down the trees and selling them is sufficient to provide a livelihood for these simple people, whose tastes are so modest that they may be termed by some uncivilized.

Westminster Abbey.

All visitors to London make it a point to visit the famous Westminster abbey. But in reality there is no such place as Westminster abbey, because the abbey disappeared many, many years ago. What they see now is the church that used to belong to the abbey, and the proper name for this building is the Collegiate Church of St. Peter. They keep up the old name Westminster abbey because people like it, just as they keep the blood stains in the Tower freshened up with paint now and then.—New York Sun.

East Indian Magic.

A traveler tells a story of Indian magic. The juggler was a Malay, who stroked with his fingers the blade of a long knife or creese. The observer saw water fall drop by drop from the blade, which became flaccid, like a strip of India rubber. Thrown on the ground, it bounced about, but was a knife blade again when lifted by the juggler. An examination showed that there was no water on the mat on which the observer saw the drops falling.

Guns Heard Ninety-seven Miles.

My house is on a high hill near Godalming, and as I sat reading one afternoon I heard, or rather felt, a long vibrating boom several times repeated. I thought it must be a motor van maneuvering behind the house, but found nothing there. Then I guessed what it might be and forthwith wrote to the chief gunnery officer of H. M. S. Orion to make sure. Through the very kind courtesy of this gentleman I am able to state for certain that the discharge of the Orion's guns was distinctly audible ninety-seven statute miles from the ship, the sound taking somewhere about eleven minutes to travel the distance.—Letter in London Spectator.

Could Help Himself.

It was the anniversary of his young son's birthday, and the proud father, who felt that he ought to give the lad something, stepped into a bookseller's shop.

"What kind of a book would you like?" asked the assistant, to whom the other had confided his purpose.

"Something that would be useful and educative," said the father, forgetting that he always detested such books in his own boyhood.

"Well, here is a very excellent one on 'Self Help'!"

"Self Help!" exclaimed the father. "Ben doesn't need anything of that kind. You ought to see him at the dinner table!"—San Francisco Star.

DO GOOD TO OTHERS.

Don't live for yourself, and do not be afraid of diminishing your own happiness by pronouncing that of others. He who labors wholly for the benefit of others and, as it were, forgets himself is far happier than the man who makes himself the sole object of all his affections and exertions. A selfish person misses the warm heart throbs that come with the joy of doing good to others.

Drenching the Doorstep.
In many parts of England there exists even today a very curious custom which makes it imperative for the girl friends of a bride to drench the doorstep of her home with boiling water if they wish other marriages to follow very quickly. At the wedding, therefore, great kettles of hot water stand ready for this strange ceremony, and long after the rest of the guests have dispersed the young girls of the party may be seen keeping the threshold warm as long as the water supply will last.

Propounds a Question.
"I have a question to ask," said a twelve-year-old lad in a South Boston school, his fifty classmates paying strict attention, curious to ascertain what the substance of the query was. "Propound the question," answered the schoolma'am, a recent graduate from the normal school.

"If lead makes pens ill what will make an ink well?"

The boy was immediately sent home and told not to return to school unless his parents accompanied him.—Boston Journal.

MEEKNESS.
The state of mind which is described as meekness of spirit is characterized in a high degree by inward harmony. There is not, as formerly, that inward jarring of thought contending with thought and conscience asserting rights which it could not maintain. —T. C. Upham.

NOTICE!

Notice is hereby given That there will be a Mass Meeting of fishermen belonging to the South Eastern Alaska Fishermen's Association at Wrangell, Alaska, September 26th, at 10 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of drafting and approving a Constitution for the government of the above mentioned association.

Bearing in mind the fact that this organic law is to cover a great territory, deal with many and varied conditions, and that serious problems now confronting us may be manfully met, we feel we cannot urge too strongly that this meeting be made as large and representative a gathering as possible from all localities affiliated. In order that our association may be of lasting benefit to our members from an economic point of view; an agency for disseminating just and wholesome public policies and an instrument for the permanent upbuilding of the country which we have chosen to live and labor in, we again implore you to make this meeting a success both in attendance and earnestness of purpose.

AMERICA'S FINEST FLOURING MILLS*

Costs more PER SACK

Costs less PER LOAF

AUTHORITIES concede that the FISHER FLOURING MILLS COMPANY has the most perfectly constructed, best arranged and modern equipped plant ever built in this country. It employs only the most experienced millers and uses selected Eastern Hard Wheat and choice Western Soft Wheat in producing

FISHER'S BLEND FLOUR

Naturally, it costs more to turn out this new, high-grade blend than it does to make simpler and less carefully blended flours. Hence, its price per sack is slightly more. Inasmuch as it is not flour but loaves of bread that we eat, and as FISHER'S BLEND makes more loaves, in proportion to its cost, than does any other flour, housewives and others using it have the satisfaction of knowing that they are really getting more and better values for their money. FISHER'S BLEND costs more as flour, but it gives more, both in quality and quantity of loaves, and is therefore actually more economical to buy and use than are the cheaper brands.
